“A Program of Dysphagia Research: Mentorship, Discovery, and Innovation”

Dr. Martin-Harris will summarize two focused areas of her program of research that include standardization of swallowing assessment and treatment across the lifespan and the cross system interactions between respiration and swallowing. Her research strategies for clinical translation and dissemination will be detailed. She will demonstrate two examples of how scientific discoveries can lead to widespread clinical translation, dissemination and innovative rehabilitation methods. Her programmatic research approach and mentor leadership experiences will demonstrate how to integrate pathways for career development of students, post-doctoral fellows, residents and faculty.
