

Full-Time Lecturer Position in MFA in Documentary Media program

The Department of Radio/Television/Film at Northwestern University's School of Communication is seeking a full-time lecturer in documentary media production. The ideal candidate will be a documentary filmmaker who has made feature or short form documentaries that have screened at noteworthy film festivals and/or been distributed (broadcast/VOD/theatrical). Candidates should have an MFA plus college teaching experience. Preferred secondary areas of documentary specialization may include: Editing (Premiere), Cinematography, or Sound (production and/or post-production). Our program offers a range of approaches to documentaries, from traditional forms to those that utilize techniques borrowed from fiction, and/or fiction films that utilize documentary techniques. The position involves teaching MFA graduate courses in our Documentary Media program (www.docmedia.northwestern.edu) as well as undergraduate production courses in the Department.

Appointment starts September 1, 2018, for a one-year term, with the possibility of renewal. Please submit a resumé, three recommendation letters, teaching evaluations and links to sample(s) to the Faculty Recruiting System located at the following link:

<https://facultyrecruiting.northwestern.edu/apply/MTMx>

For questions or nominations, please contact docmedia@northwestern.edu

For fullest consideration, applicants should submit materials by May 10th, 2018, but review of applications will continue until the position is filled.

Northwestern University is an Equal Opportunity, Affirmative Action Employer of all protected classes including veterans and individuals with disabilities.

NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY