Northwestern University’s Department of Theatre seeks an accomplished theatre artist developing and/or sustaining a national profile as an actor and/or director for a full-time, tenure-track Assistant Professor position beginning September 1, 2018. This position will be based on both the Evanston and Chicago campuses.

The successful candidate will teach a range of acting styles and directing methodologies at both the undergraduate and graduate levels. A focus on devising, Latin theatre and/or African American theatre would be especially appreciated. The successful candidate will support collaborative interactions between faculty, staff and students.

Ideally, applicants should have at least five years teaching experience, an MFA in an appropriate field plus substantial acting and directing credits.

Applications and supporting documents (cover letter, current CV, and the contact information of two references) will be accepted only by online submission at the following link: https://facultyrecruiting.northwestern.edu/apply/NTE=

Review of applications will begin January 3, 2018 and continue until the position is filled.

Northwestern University’s Department of Theatre offers undergraduate degrees in dance (BA, BS) and theatre (BA, BS); graduate degrees in directing (MFA) and design (MFA); and a Ph.D. in interdisciplinary theatre studies. It features 40 full-time faculty, 400+ undergraduate majors, and 60+ graduate students. It is located on Northwestern University’s Evanston campus in greater Chicago.

Northwestern University is an Equal Opportunity, Affirmative Action Employer of all protected classes, including veterans and individuals with disabilities. Women, underrepresented racial and ethnic minorities, individuals with disabilities, and veterans are encouraged to apply. Hiring is contingent upon eligibility to work in the United States.
